Griffith is hopeful of making a trade at the spring meeting of the two leagues in February, but he is not par-ticular if he should fail in this if Gedeon is as good as Griffith hopes he will be.

Arthur Irwin, veteran manager and Arthur Irwin, veteran manager and scout, was in the city yesterday, passing through on a trip south, where he has some business. Irwin saw much of Judge and Jamison last year, and he is loud in his praise of Judge. "Judge," he said, "is going to make one of the greatest players the game has ever produced. He will be as great a fielder as Hal Chase was, in due time, and I look for him to prove himself the best hitter on the Washington team next season. As for Jamison, I know he will be of great service to Griffith." he will be of great service to Griffith."

A lot of wise ball players who figured that the war would go on forever and that they would be financially benefited thereby are seeing the error of their way. Tris Speaker probably could have signed at the same figure for another year had he shown a willingness to do so. But he preferred to wait until the Feds came along with a big proposition, so he could hold up the Boston club for a higher salary than he was getting. Frank Baker made a similar mistake, and stayed out of the fold too long. Dave Davenport was one of the Feds who pulled the trick, and last, but not least, Reb Russell of the White Sox spurned a contract handed him at the end of last season.

Much interest is being shown in the Phi Mu Sigma Basket Ball League by the various teams making up that organization and their followers. Considering the conditions under which the games have taken place and the character of the circuit the play has been exceptionally good.

The race is close, too, two teams being out in front without a defeat charged against them. The Pi five has won six victories and the Alpha quint has three to its credit. Neither of these has met its master in any contest.

The other newcomer with experience will benefit the Farmers in a department in which they always have been weak—pole vaulting. He is Speidell, who graduated at Central High last spring. Speidell is expected to do around eleven feet, to say the least. Incidentally, Shank, who played full-back on the foot ball team last fall, is said to have done more than twenty-two feet in the broad jump; Brown, last year at the Sparrows Point High School, has done about twenty-one feet in the bread jump, and Hart was captain of the Hyde Park High School squad of Chicago as a dash man.

The organizers of the exposition include leading French engineers, hygienists and business men. The United States will be permitted to participate, and probably will be the sole foreign country represented. Henry C. Long of Boston has been selected as the director of the American section. He will have complete charge of the exhibits and make arrangements with the American firms desiring to be represented.

The Tulleries Gardens exhibition building, to which it is planned to add several wings, has been selected for the showing of the products of the manufacturers and the ways of using them. Moving pictures will be used in this connection. The cost of exhibitors will be 80 francs per square meter, plus 1 per cent of the exhibitors sales.

Having had a bunch of stock in the Fed club of that city, it was reasonable to assume that Jones would not continue with the merged club unless he were allowed to exchange his Fed stock for some in the merged organization.

Jones always has taken the stand that he would not manage a club unless he could have a financial interest in it—that was why he left Comiskey some years ago.

Senator Gore of Oklahoma, a democrat, set the ball rolling by crystallizing the sentiment in favor of keeping Americans off belligerent-owned vessels in two bills which he submitted to the Senaté. It was Senator Jones of Washington, a republican, who started the debate on the floor of the Senate, reading an editorial from a newspaper urging that American citizens be kept from traveling on belligerent-owned vessels in the war zone. Senator Jones denounced as unpatriotic American citizens who imperiled the nation by taking passage on belligerent vessels.

"It is impossible to get arms to Germany, and I say it is morally wrong for this government to permit shipment of arms to any of the belligerents," Senator Works insisted. He added that his principal objection was based on a conviction that the United States was aiding in prolonging the war and the killing of men, and that he would not only put an embargo on munitions, but also on shipment of food and clothing to the armies of Europe.

"Our markets are open to all the world to buy," said Senator Lodge.

"We have taken no action to prevent any belligerent or any one else from buying in our markets, and we are at peace with all the world. A condition has been created by this war, and by the war alone, which prevents one or more belligerents from buying in this markets. If we undertake to reverse a condition created by the war, we at once enter into the war and endeavor to restore a condition existing before the war, and that is an act of unneutrality."

"Evidently in time of war such as is now disturbing the peace of the world," Senator O'Gorman rejoined, "almost any act of a neutral power would be regarded by some as an act of partiality, but, in my judgment, this government, if it deemed it best for the American nation and the best security of peace with all the nations, could place an embargo against the shipment of munitions to any belligerent without exposing itself to the imputation of an unneutral act."
